CITY OF SPOKANE PARK BOARD

RESOLUTION

A Resolution of the City of Spokane Park Board ("Park Board") endorsing the location and expansion of public libraries on park land.

WHEREAS, the Park Board is empowered by the City Charter to lay out, establish, purchase, procure, accept, and have the care, management control and improvement of, all parks and grounds used for park purposes, all boulevards, connecting parks and structures thereon, and all parkways; and

WHEREAS the Park Board is empowered by the City Charter to exercise supervision over all shade trees, shrubs and plants of all kinds on or in the streets and public places of the city, and over all resting places, water stations, playgrounds and parade grounds; and

WHEREAS, the Spokane Public Library ("Library") has recommended and the Spokane City Council ("City Council") plans to present a Library Bond to be considered in a vote by the citizens of Spokane in 2018; and necessary library services to the neighborhood and the library in proposing the expansion of the Facility. The Park Board supports this joint use of the City owned and operated facilities which improves community health and vitality for the entire area.

WHEREAS the co-location of Library Facilities and Parks at Liberty Park and the expansion of current the library facility at Shadle Park are in the best interests of the Park Board, Department, the City and its residents because:

For consideration by the Lands Committee of the Spokane Park Board:

Community member Dr. Suzan Entwhistle has proposed to donate a piece of artwork to the Spokane Parks Department to be installed on Parks property overlooking the Spokane River in Kendall Yards, just west of the Monroe Street Bridge. The artwork in question is designed by local artist Richard Warrington, who has over 40 years of experience, with sculptures of this size and scale installed in the Spokane Valley, Coeur D'Alene, and across the country. The cost of the artwork, engineering, installation, long term maintenance fee, and other associated costs will be self-funded by Dr. Entwhistle.

Project specifics:

Material*: corten steel with rust finish (similar to the Bloomsday runner statues)*
Size: roughly 6 feet tall
Base: flat concrete
Cleaning: Graffiti can be scrubbed off with a wire brush
Installation: Artist will deliver artwork to site and oversee installation
Site needs: No electricity or power is required for this artwork. Nearby lighting will suffice.
Budget*: $15,000*

Plaque text:
"artwork title tbd"
Richard Warrington, 2018
Commissioned in memory of Dr. John Marshall by his loving family.

Approval process:
The Joint Art Committee of the Park Board, which includes three Park Board members alongside three Spokane Arts Commissioners, approved the artwork to move forward after hearing two presentations from Dr. Entwhistle and Richard Warrington. Their approval was conditioned upon a final signed & stamped document from a structural engineer, confirming that the artwork will be installed securely and safely. See attached email from the structural engineer, who is offering his support for the project and will provide full engineering once the artwork has moved through design approval.

Next steps if approved by the Lands committee:
This matter would move to the full Park Board for consideration. If approved, then Dr. Entwhistle will move forward in her contract with the artist, who will proceed with fabrication and prepare for installation. Then an MOU would be created between Dr. Suzan Entwhistle and the Parks Foundation, stating that the artwork in question is being donated to the Parks department to be installed at the specific site outlined in their proposal, in coordination and consultation with Parks staff. The Parks department would accept the artwork into their collection and commit to its long-term maintenance. That maintenance would be paid for by a one-time fee paid up front by Dr. Entwhistle, representing 10% of the overall project budget. This allows the Parks department to draw on those funds for long-term maintenance as needed, over time.

My husband was the Chief of Surgery at the VA Hospital who disappeared on a training run for Bloomsday from the downtown YMCA, January 25, 2016. His body was found the following day in the Spokane River, two weeks before his 50th birthday and a celebration trip to Hawaii. His death shattered our lives and left our 10-year old daughter, Elle, and 13-year old son, Liam, with no father.

John overcame a childhood of tremendous trauma and abuse to become a USMC 2nd Battalion, 9th Marines Company Officer and rise to the rank of Captain from 1985-1993. He served in every campaign from the Gulf Wars to the LA Riots and Somalia. He was awarded the Navy Achievement Medal, Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal, National Defense Service Medal, Southwest Asia Service Medal (w/ 1 star), Sea Service Deployment Ribbon (w/ 1 star), and Rifle Sharpshooter and two Pistol Expert Badges.

He and I both graduated after four years from the Philadelphia College of Osteopathic Medicine under the US Army Health Professions Scholarship Program and then went on to complete General Surgery residencies over the next five years. John then deployed in 2004 as a Combat Surgeon to Asadabad, Afghanistan with the 2nd Forward Surgical Team, whose purpose was to bring surgeons to the front for stabilization and damage control of casualties. There he served in a "designated imminent danger" area and was awarded the Afghanistan Campaign Medal w/ Campaign Star, Global War on Terrorism Service Medal, and Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal.

In 2005, we met up at the 121 Combat Support Hospital in Seoul, S. Korea where we were both Staff Surgeons, and John also was Commander of the 135th Forward Surgical Team and Chief of General Surgery. There we adopted our two children, Liam from S. Korea and Elle from China. During those four years, John was awarded another Southwest Asia Service Medal, two Army Commendation Medals, Army Achievement Medal, another National Defense Service Medal, Army Service and Overseas Service Ribbons, and Combat Medical and Expert Pistol Badges.

John and I settled in Spokane after our overseas tours to raise our children and enjoy the Inland NW, taking advantage of Bloomsday to snow skiing and boating. Several of our family members have left the East Coast to join us here. The last five years of his life, John served fellow veterans and taught young physicians and medical students as a Staff Surgeon and Chief of Surgery at the VAMC Spokane. His sudden and tragic death left a young family and scores of Veterans, students and residents without his skills and kindness. He left a permanent mark on all of us as an incredible man who overcame much to serve others. Because of his death, we join the honorable few, the Gold Star Families of Washington.

What Happened to John Marshall?

The wife of a man found dead in the Spokane River is searching for answers three months after his death

By Mitch Ryals

Night-black water lapped at the banks of the Spokane River just west of the Monroe Street Bridge while helicopter blades beat against the sky overhead. They were looking for a person. Or maybe a body. But they found nothing.

That was about 18 hours after Suzan Marshall got a call. Her husband, John, chief of surgery at the veterans hospital in Spokane, hadn't shown up for work.

"Bad, bad, bad," she says of her initial reaction. The kids were already at school. She drove to the YMCA on North Monroe where her husband exercised most mornings. His car was still in the parking lot, coffee mug in the cup holder, his gym bag still in the gym cubbyhole.

For about six hours, with the help of friends and family, Suzan Marshall had searched the area; they thought he might be alive. By nightfall, she had to pick her kids up from piano lessons. Before bed that night, she told them, "We just need to find Daddy. We can deal with whatever happens when we get there. We just need to find him."

His body was found early the next morning on Jan. 26, floating in shallow water on the north bank of the Spokane River, just west of the Monroe Street Bridge — one spot where his wife says she looked the day before. She stood with her children and watched as first responders pulled John's body from the water. Media crews flocked to the Centennial Trail. Passersby pointed cellphones at the water. Suzan Marshall's mind turned with questions.

It's been three months since his body was found. The medical examiner ruled the cause of death was drowning, an accident. Police have suspended the investigation, meaning they could reopen the case if new information emerges, but they're no longer actively chasing down leads. No one has offered any further explanation, Suzan Marshall says.

She's since hired a private investigator, who says his efforts are being "stonewalled" by the Spokane Police Department's refusal to share its investigation immediately.

"There's pain and treachery," Suzan Marshall says. "Did someone do this to him? And how did he get into the water? Finding closure and acceptance is that much more difficult."

WHAT WE KNOW

Spokane police started looking for him around 4 pm on Jan. 25, by his wife's recollection. To Suzan Marshall's surprise, police typically don't actively search for reportedly missing adults unless the person is in danger because of a mental or physical disability, says Spokane Police Officer Teresa Fuller.

Approaching midnight, a helicopter scanning the river found nothing. By 8 am Tuesday, joggers spotted a body floating in the shallow water near the bridge. The police confirmed the body was the "missing VA surgeon."

Ted Pulver, Suzan Marshall's private investigator, is pursuing at least one theory that John Marshall entered the river from the plaza just below City Hall. Since he was found fully clothed, and with his shoes and socks on and his iPod in his pocket, Pulver believes it is highly unlikely that John Marshall fell through the falls. He is also puzzled how the river's currents could have left the body in such shallow water.

"The water level should not have allowed the body to be there," he says. "I've talked with the hydrologist and the staff at Avista, and they could not come up with a scenario that the body would have been there."

Injuries reported in the autopsy point to the likelihood of an assault, according to Suzan Marshall, who also is a surgeon.

She says she's already shelled out $5,000 for the private investigation (and has set up a fundraising page on GoFundMe.com), but Pulver says his efforts have stalled because Spokane police are not willing to share unredacted copies of their investigation.

"Time is your enemy on investigations of this type," Pulver says. "Every hour that goes by makes it that much more difficult. It's been over 30 days since [the police suspended the investigation] and for whatever reason we haven't received one page of information."

Spokane police say they are in the process of redacting information and will release the investigation when that process is complete. The Inlander made an identical request and was told it would take at least 100 business days to complete.

'COSMICALLY CONNECTED'

The night before John Marshall went missing, his wife recalls that he fell asleep holding her hand. She was babbling about "our incredible romance 20 years earlier, like we so often did."

All their photos are in albums because he put them there, his wife says. He signed up to run in the Bloomsday race with his son months ago, a commitment the 13-year-old intends to keep. And when he missed the father-daughter Valentine's Day dance in February, his brother stepped in to take his 10-year-old daughter.

Sometimes, after the kids were in bed, Suzan Marshall says they would stroll into the pasture on their 25-acre property with a glass of wine and look up at the stars.

"We made it," John Marshall would say.

"John and I were so incredibly cosmically connected. I do feel like a part of me died," Suzan Marshall says now.

Occasionally the former Marine Corps and Army officer would surprise his family with vacations, not telling them where they were going until they got there. They would do the same for him. His wife planned to take him to Hawaii for his upcoming 50th birthday. Instead, that was the day she cremated him. Her hand trembled as she pushed the button to start the incinerator.

WHAT HASN'T CHANGED

John Marshall's clothes are still hanging in his closet, his toothbrush still in the bathroom he shared with his wife. Hanging above the couple's tub is Howard Pyle's painting The Mermaid.

As the story goes, one of Pyle's students found the painting sitting on an easel in his studio. Pyle died before he could finish it, but the painting depicts a mermaid lifting a man out of a briny, blue-green sea.

"It's this idea of two worlds that can never be together again," Suzan Marshall says. "But that doesn't mean they can't affect and inspire each other."

The print held poignant significance for her the night she returned from searching the river. A military veteran herself, Suzan Marshall doesn't typically cry over her husband in front of people — at least not anymore. But she did that night.

Suzan Marshall says as long as the word "accident" remains the official determination without further explanation, she can't have closure. She owes it to her husband. Indeed, when she recently fractured her left hand, she simply moved her diamond engagement and anniversary rings to her right.

"I'm still married in my heart," she says. "It doesn't change." ♦

Richard Warrington
Professional Contemporary Sculptor in Cheney WA

Biography

A diverse impressionistic sculptor, I design and build two- and three-dimensional hollow form and silhouette sculptures. As an artist, my work is an expression of my spiritual, emotional, and aesthetic responses to my experiences. My art is an intuitive and subjective reaction to my environment, making my designs bold and rhythmical. The use of color, buffed finishes and extreme attention to detail highlight my work. A professional sculptor for over 30 thirty years I specialize in one-of-a-kind, site-specific, collaborated commission work. I also design and produce limited editions.

In 1966, I attended Eastern Washington University where I studied fine art and, after two years, I enrolled in a more structured program at Spokane Falls Community College. After receiving a design and advertising liberal arts degree, I opened Warrington Studios and Gallery in July 1971.

After a couple of years painting, I moved into sculpture. In 1974, I completed a composite piece for King Cole, the initiator of the 1974 World's Fair, in Spokane, Washington. During the fair, Chris Kristofferson, a famous actor and musician, was interested about the high quality of my work. Talking to him provided me with a positive momentum that pushed me forward in my artistic pursuit for greatness!

I closed my gallery in 1975. Since that time, I have created commissions for country clubs, resort hotels, hospitals, corporations, banks, colleges, churches, and businesses such as U-Haul and Tap Pharmaceutical. I have also worked with large developers.

At this time, I continue to sell my pieces through major art galleries and design firms from coast to coast. My work has been collected by individuals, businesses, sculpture parks, and banks in the United States, Europe, Asia, South America and Canada.

My work has been shown in Art in America, Art News, Art Business News, Sculpture Magazine, The Guild Book , Florida Design, Triangle, Palm Springs Life, Southwest Art, The Spokesman Review, Best of America Sculpture Artists (Vol. 2, Spring 2011), American Art Collectors (July 2011), Artist Showcase Magazine (Spring 2012), Cover of Artist Showcase Magazine Sculpure (Summer 2012).

Re: Centennial Trail Art-Richard Warrington

To Whom it May Concern:

The Kendall Yards BOA represents the common community interests of all of the retail and commercial businesses located in Kendall Yards. We have reviewed the proposal for an art installation by Richard Warrington to be located in the Spokane Falls overlook along the Centennial Trail located just west of Monroe Street. We believe there is adequate space on the overlook plaza for the proposed sculpture and we support the installation as a positive amenity to the trail environment.

During our site visit related to the installation we informed the sponsor that the concrete plaza surface was not necessarily constructed to support a major art installation and they should consider the issue as part of their due diligence.

Sincerely,

Jim Frank

Hi Suzan,

I'll be able to provide a stamped letter stating the foundation and the connections between the sculpture and the foundation will be structurally sound. The strength of the sculpture itself would be difficult to determine without physically loading it in various ways, i.e., pulling on it sideways, etc., which might damage the sculpture. The concrete foundation and the rods that connect the sculpture to the foundation will be designed to be stronger than any reasonable maximum loads that the sculpture would experience. I'll provide details for the concrete foundation thickness and the reinforcing steel in the concrete. I'll also work with the artist to design the anchor rods that will be embedded in the concrete foundation and connected to a steel frame that will be inside the sculpture. I want to wait to provide the complete engineering until after this project has been approved.

If you have further questions or comments, please let me know. If it would be helpful, I'd be happy to attend the meeting on Thursday to answer other questions, etc.

Thanks,

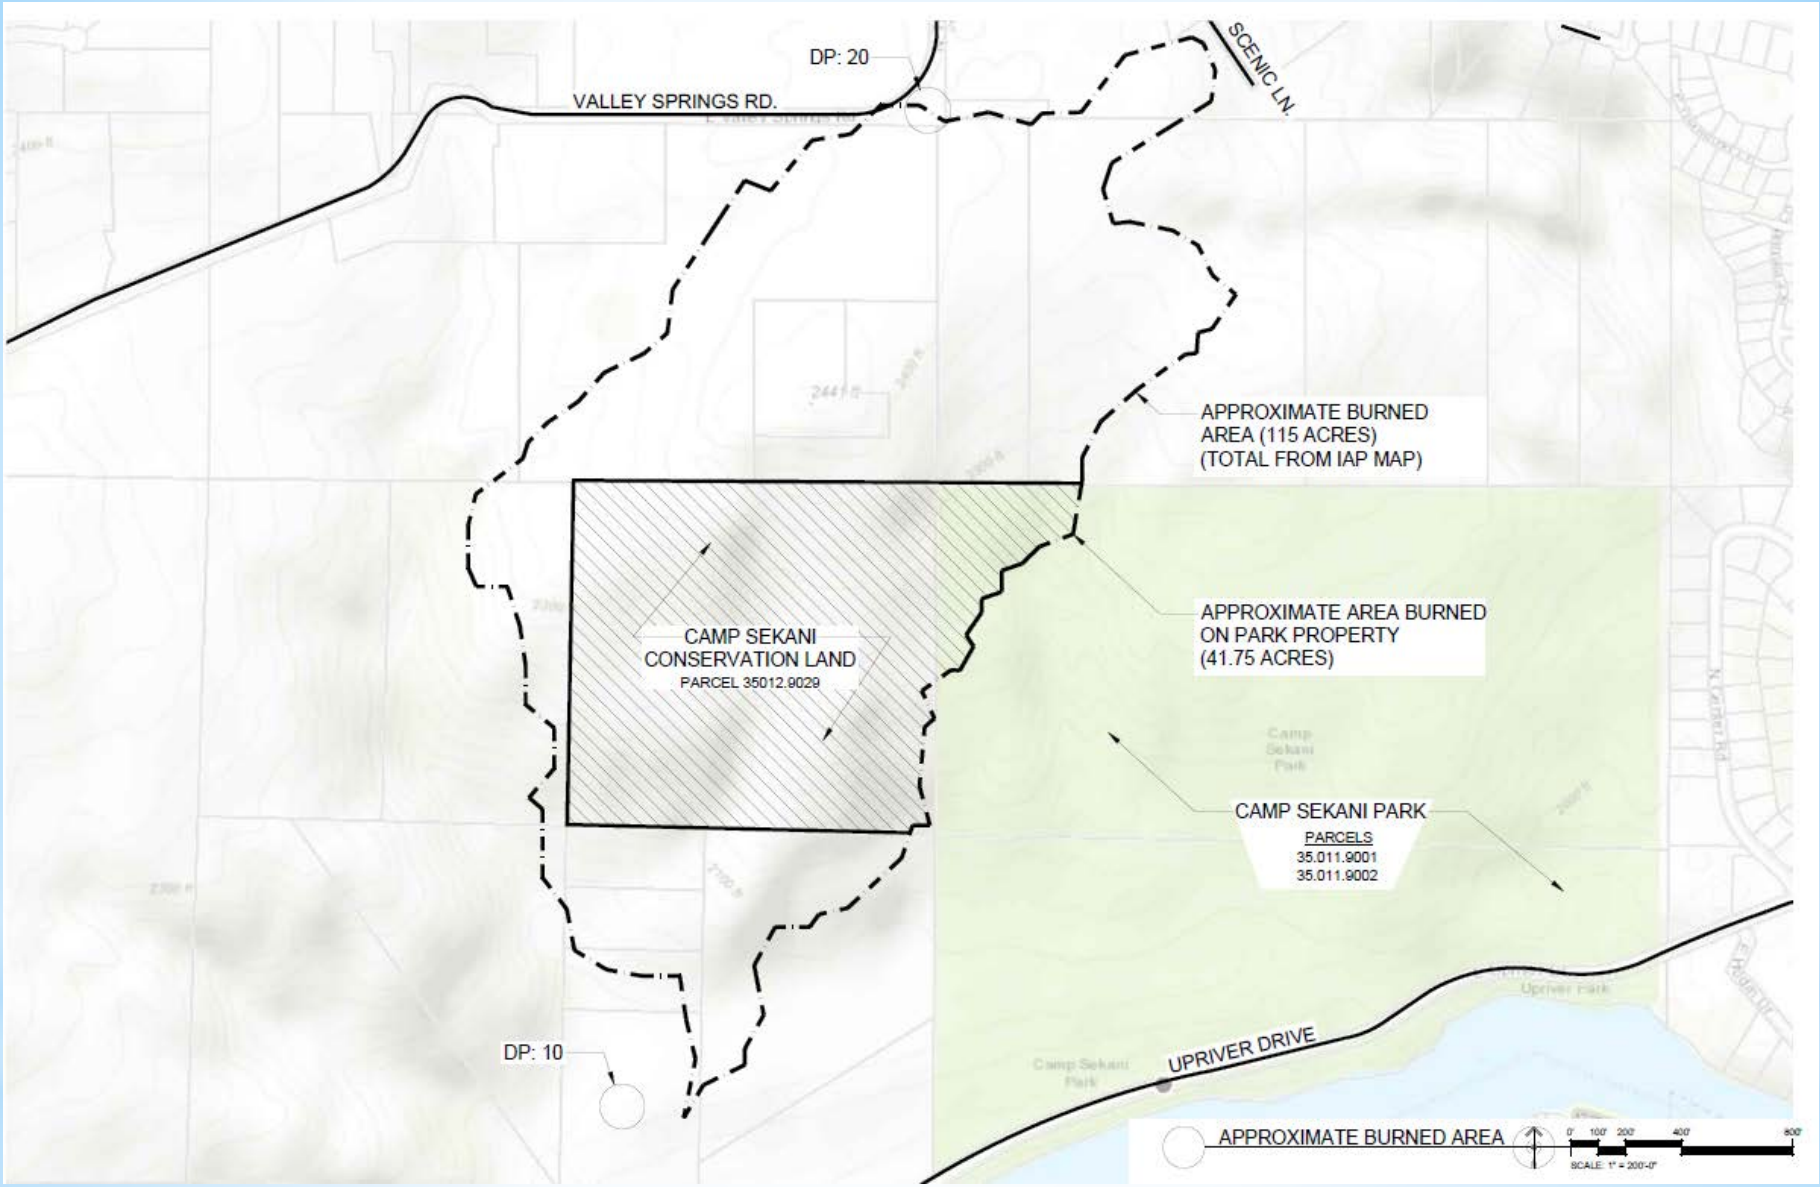
* Camp Sekani Update

Land Committee

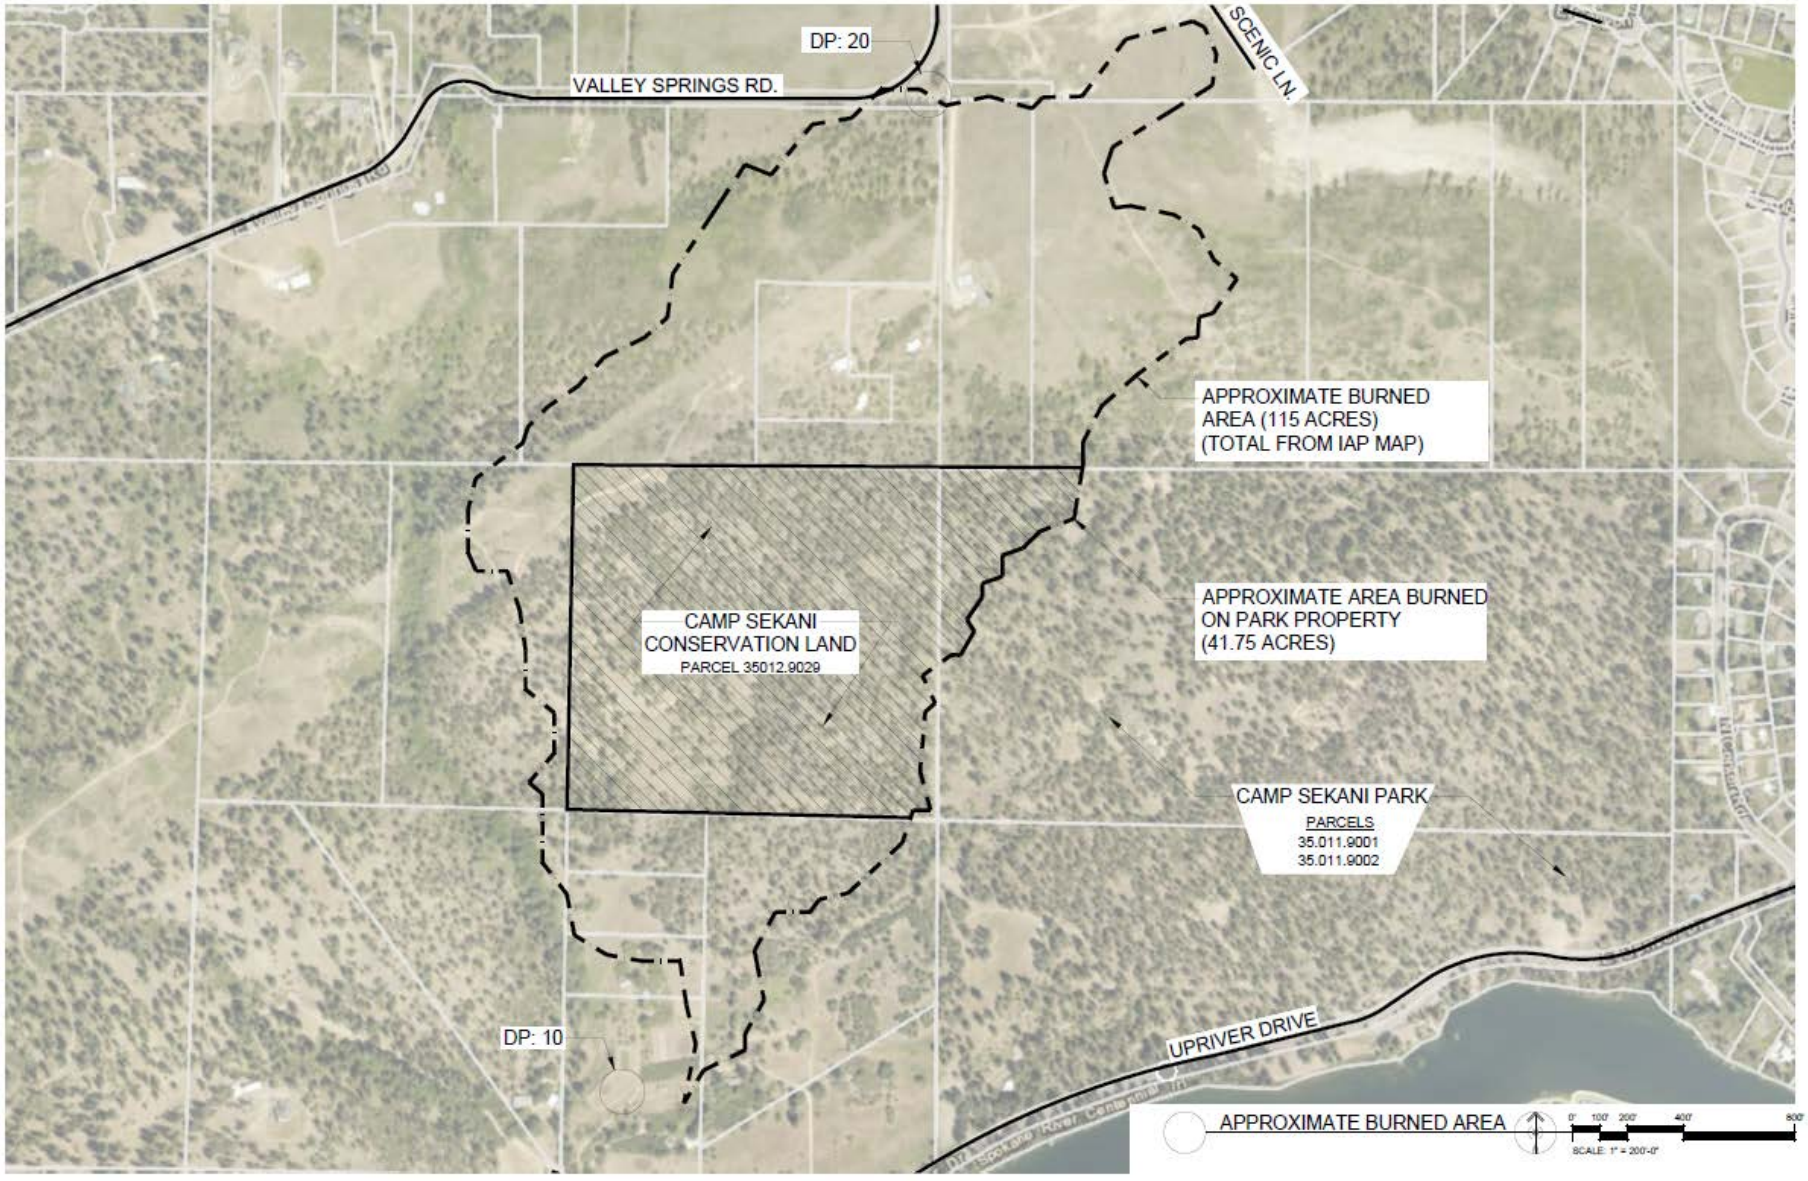
August 1, 2018

*Wild Fire Update

- A fire started on private Beacon Hill property adjacent to Camp Sekani at about 4:00PM on Tuesday, July 17
- According to officials, multiple agencies and 87 personnel fought fire, which burned 115 acres and damaged power lines and burned three structures
- No buildings or structures on park property were burned, but 41.75 park acres were burned
- The fire was declared “fully contained” on July 21 but monitoring continues



*Wild Fire Update



*Wild Fire Update

Incident Command:

* DNR crews are continuing to monitor the fire area. It will not be unusual to observe equipment and personnel on the site.
* Not all the hazards inside the burn area are mitigated. Loose soil, downed trees, stressed trees, and possible hot spots remain.
* We plan to meet with DNR IC staff in a couple weeks as they plan their transition off of the incident. This meeting will likely be very helpful in determining our next steps.
* DNR may offer some restoration of the fire line disturbance before leaving the site, supplying equipment and personnel for some re-grading work.

Personal and Public Safety:

* Hazards remain on the site. Be cautious and aware of your surroundings. Watch out for holes, hot spots, loose soil, downed trees, stressed and unstable trees. Joint statement released to the public regarding access and safety.

*Wild Fire Update

Soil Erosion Protection:

* Be sensitive to the unstable soils which are now very susceptible to erosion. Stay on the established trails and roads. We will meet with DNR IC and NE Region Foresters to determine an action plan to support protection of the soil resource.

Forest and Land Restoration:

* Ponderosa pine forests are well-adapted to fire and nature will do much of the restoration work for us. We will meet with DNR IC and NE Region Foresters to determine an action plan to support, supplement, and accelerate the natural processes.

Trail Restoration:

* After meeting with DNR IC and completing any potential fire line restoration work, we can address next steps for creating safe public access, clearing and restoring of the trail system.
* On-going trail monitoring and maintenance will be needed as erosion events and additional tree failures occur.

*Wild Fire Update

Proposed Valley Springs subdivision by Camp Sekani:

* Owner is allowing usage for trails just north of Camp Sekani while development plans are finalized and property is being considered by Conservations Futures
* Developer is putting in a new application since his old one expired. Design is generally the same as before, except that it is taking out 34 lots from the original 360+ developed lots
* New application asks for a total 242 new lots in addition to the 89 existing lots that have been developed

*Development Update

Proposed Valley Springs subdivision by Camp Sekani:

* Discussions will be had about north access to Camp Sekani for fire access, with a locked gate
* Developer has not ruled out the access to trails and the ability to work the lots around the trails but more discussion would need to be had and compensation made – this is not shown on the recently submitted application

Dear Leroy Eadie,

This letter is a follow up to a conversation we had a while back pertaining to an interest to name the baseball field at A.M. Cannon Park after Rick Harris. I'm pleased to share that the board of the West Central Community Development Association voted unanimously in favor of a resolution to submit this letter in petition for your support and that of the Parks & Recreation Department to help make this happen.

For over 27 years, Rick has been a rock, a role model, a mentor and a friend to many of the most vulnerable youth in Spokane's West Central neighborhood. His dedication in service to them is truly without parallel. Through coaching, education around drug prevention and bullying, or his consistent modeling of strong values and virtuous behavior, he offers nothing but a positive presence and a safe environment for so many who may not find these spaces anywhere else in their lives. We firmly believe there is nobody more deserving of this honor than Rick. Furthermore - and particularly in the context of a culture of poverty - we believe it is important for youth in West Central to see one of their "real life" heroes recognized in a larger context. We also believe this will offer inspiration and affirmation to so many others who are also providing meaningful service in our local community.

We look forward to advancing this conversation with you to explore how we can honor Rick for a lifetime of selfless dedication to some of the most vulnerable kids in our City. We are prepared to assist with whatever effort is required to help make it happen.

Thank you again for all your support!

Sincerely,

Keith Kelley, Board President

On behalf of the North Indian Trail Neighborhood, we request that the Parks Department conduct an assessment of the current level of service, (LOS), for our neighborhood. We believe that the current LOS is grossly inadequate to properly provide Park and Recreation Services to our growing population.

Furthermore, we request that the Parks Department begin the process of developing properties available in our neighborhood in order to provide adequate services to our residents.

The Planning Department completed a neighborhood assessment in 2005. That assessment identified two parks. One is the 4.85 acre Pacific Park, which is developed and the 14.3 acre Meadowglen Park, which is undeveloped. The LOS at that time was based on a population of 6,212 and included both parks for an LOS of 3.08 compared to a city-wide LOS of 5.28. Our most recently available population figure is 7,233 which yields an LOS of 2.66.

The current state of the Meadowglen "Park" is that it is deeply rutted, weed and rodent infested, and so littered with tree debris where there are trees, that it currently provides no park or recreational functionality whatsoever. Some of the area in the treed portion is actually hazardous and should be cleaned up.

Meadowglen is in such poor condition that at this time it should not be considered in the LOS calculation. Functionally, Pacific Park is the only usable facility in the neighborhood. At 4.85 acres, our effective LOS is 0.67.

A further point is that the current household size reported on Citydata.com is that our neighborhood has 6.2 persons per household compared to 2.4 for the city as a whole, which suggests that our children are even more underserved than the LOS indicates.

Our population will be growing significantly both in the near future and later. The Crapo development currently in progress will add over 300 homes in addition to multiple single family homes being constructed around the neighborhood. Additionally, the Douglass family has three large undeveloped properties, which as currently zoned and as envisioned in TIA's could result in up to 604 single family homes and 527 apartment units being built.
