

Housing: Investing in Every Step

The City of Spokane's new "all-of-the-above" approach to housing prevents homelessness before it starts, redesigns and improves its emergency shelter model, incentivizes housing development, and invests in proven pathways to stability.

As part of this approach, Spokane is using opioid settlement dollars to support recovery and housing-focused programs, advancing crucial housing reform policies, and setting bold housing goals.

Opioid Investments:

National opioid settlement funds are being strategically allocated to combat the opioid crisis and expand crucial treatment and recovery services. So far, the City of Spokane has distributed more than $3.3 million to:

- Expand Spokane Fire's CARES Team
- Launch the High Utilizer Initiative

- Embed a behavioral health provider into the Homeless Outreach Team
- Expand medication-assisted treatment
- · Expand sobering bed capacity
- Support infants suffering from neonatal abstinence syndrome
- · Navigate people living outdoors into housing

Housing Policy Reforms:

Spokane leads in zoning code and housing reform policy. In the past two years, the city has set permitting records and enhanced housing development opportunities by:

- Allowing multiple units on every residential lot in the city
- Eliminating parking minimums for all residential construction
- Removing height restrictions downtown

- Reducing lot sizes for residential development
- Allowing Accessory Dwelling Units (ADUs) on any residential lot
- Encouraging a greater variety of housing types, including mixed-income housing
- Expanding the areas eligible for the Multi-Family Tax Exemption and Parking Lot and Office Conversion to Housing programs

What Comes Next?

- Developing the navigation center in a daytime drop-in center
- Launching a new coordinated street outreach response
- Expanding Spokane County's crisis stabilization center
- · Creating mobile alternative response teams
