INCIDENT SYNOPSIS:

A Spokane Police Department detective was assigned to investigate a criminal case involving minors.

COMPLAINT:

The guardian of one of the minors involved in the criminal case alleged the detective released information about her child to an outside party. The complainant further alleged the detective falsified a statement involving the complainant's husband.

INVESTIGATION:

The investigator reviewed the contents of the criminal case. The investigator interviewed the complainant and her husband. The investigator requested corroborating information from the complainant. The investigator interviewed the involved detective.

ANALYSIS AND CONCLUSION:

The investigation concluded there were no objective facts or circumstances to support the allegations. The allegation was classified as "not sustained", meaning there was insufficient evidence to sustain the complaint or exonerate the employee.
