The Health Benefits of Art

Creating art is a powerful way to connect to our deepest emotions and self. Anyone can create art! The trick is letting go of self-judgment and caring more about the process of creativity than whether the creation is “good enough.”

Like with any wellness tool, the goal is to enhance your feelings of well-being. Think about these facts:

- Creating art allows us to be mindful and fully present in the moment.

- Creative projects help our brains and bodies feel better. It's been shown that all kinds of creativity raise self-esteem and produce dopamine in our brains, which makes us feel good, gives us a sense of accomplishment, and enhances our wellness.

- Creating art is so powerful an act that art therapy is often used to help people heal emotionally from depression, trauma/PTSD, stress, and more.

- Art can be created by anyone of all ages, using their hands, feet or mouth.

- People with cognitive differences, limb impairment, neurodiversity, etc. can all participate in creative expression, making it a universal wellness tool.

NEW! Portrait Drawing

6 weeks | Ages 16yrs. & Up | Tom Quinn It's a common belief that no subject is more difficult than a human likeness. Actually, a good portrait calls for the same skills of observation and experience as a landscape or a still life. An artist who attains confidence at drawing portraits will have the confidence to draw anything. We begin with the anatomy and proportions of the human head and move on to the skills of creating a convincing likeness. Supply list included on the registration receipt. $85

Perspective Drawing

6 weeks | Ages 16yrs. & Up | Tom Quinn Perspective is to drawing what grammar is to writing and scales are to music. From one-point, two-point and three-point perspective, we move on to circles, shadows, and reflections. Best of all you do not have to be an artist to draw well in perspective — when you know how to use the tools, they do the drawing for you. $85
